

SLINEY'S DEATH DAY.

Fixed for the Week Beginning Monday, April 10.

Bob Lyons's Murderer Resentenced To-Day by Justice Ingraham.

An Affecting Interview with His Mother—His Father's Death.

Michael T. Sliney, whose conviction of the murder of Butcher "Bob" Lyons at 153 Cherry street, the afternoon of Nov. 25, 1891, was confirmed by the Court of Appeals, was brought down from Sing Sing this morning for resentencing.

The prisoner was in charge of State Detective Jackson, and entered the Court of Oyer and Terminer at precisely 10:30. A moment later Justice Ingraham entered the court, and Assistant District-Attorney Wellman moved that sentence be pronounced.

SENATOR L. P. HAGAN.
The Senator's death was the direct result of a critical surgical operation which, though doubtful, was the only hope for his recovery from an intestinal trouble. He had been in failing health for long time, and spent the early winter in Florida, returning apparently an improved condition. Up to Saturday last he had been able to walk out, though still weak.

Wednesday night he was admitted to Jefferson Market court today Justice Vough pronounced the judgment including him in the case of the Society which he had been a member of for over a year and should now when he was Agent Beale's will try to find the girl's father.

Yesterday Senator Hagan's physician declared that an operation was still the only chance for his life, and that even then there was only a slender thread of hope. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hagan, the mother and father of the deceased, and the ex-wife of his son, and yesterday he was removed from his home at 51 Butherland place to Roosevelt Hospital.

Presently Senator Hagan's physician declared that an operation was still the only chance for his life, and that even then there was only a slender thread of hope. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hagan, the mother and father of the deceased, and the ex-wife of his son, and yesterday he was removed from his home at 51 Butherland place to Roosevelt Hospital.

On being asked if he had anything to say why the sentence of death should not be pronounced, Sliney took his hands and said steadily, facing the Court, "I listened to the words pronouncing his doom without any outward indication of feeling, and bowed respectfully when Justice Ingraham had finished."

The time fixed for the execution is the week beginning Monday, April 10.

On leaving the court Detective Jackson led Sliney into the office, where he had a three minutes' interview with his white-haired chief, and then the two officers left together, the former going to his office, and the latter to the office of the Board of Aldermen. In 185 he was admitted from the old Sixteenth District, defeating James Fitzgerald, now justice of the peace, and General Stern.

The following year he defeated John Spinola for the Assembly and remained his allegiance to Tammany, joining the Corporation Council in 1853 and the Sixteenth Assembly District in 1854.

In 1855 he was elected Assemblyman from the old Sixteenth District, defeating James Fitzgerald, now justice of the peace, and General Stern.
